

Metaphors and Similes

Task One:

Read the text below.

Underline all metaphors in red and all similes in blue.

Lily and her little brother, Max, loved exploring the forest behind their house. One day, as they walked along the winding path, the trees rose tall and proud, their branches were arms reaching for the sky. The sunlight peeked through the leaves, dancing like golden fairies all around them.

They found a sparkling stream and bent down to watch the water, clear as glass, flow over the rocks. The water was so still and smooth that Max whispered, "It's like the stream is a mirror for the sky!"

As they walked deeper into the forest, they heard birds singing above. Lily smiled and said, "Listen! The birds are a choir filling the air with music." They watched a butterfly flutter by, its wings as bright as jewels, and felt the joy of the forest surrounding them.

By the time they left, both children felt like the forest was a magical kingdom filled with wonders.
